Seminar and Report Launch on Framework of University-Industry Linkages in Research

Thursday, 17th October 2019, 9.00 am
Raunaq Room, PHD Chamber, New Delhi

Dear Members,

Greetings!

The University-Industry linkages (UILs) are essentially the collaboration of industry and university in diverse areas that propels economic growth and accelerates socio-economic development in an economy. There are greater benefits to both industry and university in collaborating with each other to contribute in the technological advancement and to give an economic boost to the country.

The Government has undertaken several initiatives to encourage research and development in the country. However, UILs are important for various spheres of economy such as skill development, innovations and technology transfer, promotion of entrepreneurship, start-ups, among others.

We are pleased to inform you that PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry with support from DSIR, Ministry of Science and Technology, Government of India has conducted a study on Framework of University-Industry Linkages in Research and has come out with states specific dynamics.

With this backdrop, PHD Chamber is organizing a Seminar and Report Launch on Framework of University-Industry Linkages in Research on Thursday, 17th October 2019, Raunaq Room at 9.00 am at PHD Chamber, New Delhi followed by lunch to discuss the importance and benefits of University-Industry Linkages in Research to both industry & university and the role of University-Industry Linkages in economic growth.

The eminent speakers include Dr Shekhar C Mande, Secretary, DSIR, Ministry of Science and Technology, Government of India along with Scientist from DSIR, esteemed dignitaries from industry, academia, among others.

The Seminar will provide delegates an excellent opportunity to share thoughts and suggestions on University-Industry linkages in research.
